FEEDBACK ANALYSIS FOR SYLLABUS REVISION 2017

The major revision of all Programmes such as PG, M.Phil & PhD Coursework undertaken in 2017 was based on Students' feedback to make the courses valid in terms of content of the competitive examinations such as Civil Services, UGC-NET exam and other entrance examinations for higher studies.

Apart from this, the need for extensive practice in use of Psychometric tests was another concern that led to modification of the syllabi accordingly. Addition of current tests was part of this feedback.

Introduction of Field Study stemmed from students' interest for guided field experience to understand psychological concepts as it occurs in real life situations.

The demand for more specializations led to the introduction of Human Resource Psychology in both PG & M. Phil. besides Counselling Psychology

FEEDBACK ANALYSIS FOR SYLLABUS REVISION 2021

The introduction of virtual case study at PG level as an alternative to Field Study was based on students' feedback during pandemic. Owing to restrictions in physical visit to organisations, the website visit served the students' interest as well as curricula design well.

The online classes and the psychological impact of the pandemic in different spheres of Psychology made their way to the syllabus of both PG & M.Phil in many units of some of the courses to better equip the students. The need of use of PowerPoint slides and switching on of camera while teaching were what most of the students communicated through feedback about online classes.

Students felt that the third semester course load was higher than rest of the semester. Therefore, one course was shifted to the fourth semester to make the credit points of all semesters equal.

Teachers' Effectiveness Feedback Analysis

The feedback of students on Teaching Effectiveness takes into account the ratings received from students in terms of clarity, pace, quality and other dimensions of teaching of the faculty members.

The teachers try to modify their style of teaching if it is possible. And retain the dimensions appreciated by the students.

Many a times, teachers give more importance to deliver interesting lectures as it draws students towards learning.
